Asset Policy

The balanced constitution of trend follow-, swing trading- und breakout-strategies in various assetclasses and time horizons makes Quarterback independent from the current market situation. Our traders are using long as well as short positions in the itemised asset classes. The traded instruments range includes indices, foreign currencies, commodities, stocks and bonds. The used asset instruments are derivatives. That is including CFDs, spot forex, futures and options. Through our online realtime overview of all open positions and orders as well as historical transactions and results, with the Managed Account Quarterback you are receiving a very transparent type of investment

Chances

- Diversification with capital expenditures in eight different asset classes and in three different strategy directions.
- Monthly coverage through forex forward contracts and forward options possible at any time.
- Realtime calibration traceability of the investment valuation.
- Great risk-reward ratio. Long-term developed trading system in-house.

Risks

An investment in Managed Accounts is combined with the acceptance of specific risks of leveraged asset products.

Potential investors should be aware, that alternative investments are bonded with significant risks and that the account value can rise and fall.

A guarantee for a certain trading performance can not be given.

The performance of the past is not mandatory an indicator for future performances and can diverge from future growths.

It should only be taken as growth targets. Trading with futures, foreign currencies, CFDs and Options is very speculative and holds accordant risks.
